Boasting to be the “biggest business event of the year”, the World Business Forum, starting at the lowest tier $2,100.00 a ticket, may bring nearly 5000 chief executive officers and heads of the fortune 500 multi-billion dollar corporations and banks to Radio City Music Hall in October.

They're guilty of laying off thousands of workers, exploiting and oppressing workers globally, busting unions, fighting minimum wage increases to continue to pay the lowest possible wage, dumping toxic waste, privatizing natural resources, inflating gas prices, food prices and cost of living (increasing the number of homeless and hungry people), destroying entire communities, inflating rent prices and gentrifying neighborhoods. The average worker makes between 8 and 11 dollars an hour. Compare that to the following corporate CEOs (base pay, bonuses, incentive packages + equity):

Michael Duke, CEO (Walmart) = $16 million + $36 million in stocks

Rex W. Tillerson, CEO (Exxon) = $9 million + $129 million in stocks

Hugh Grant, CEO (Monsanto) = $3.8 million + $26 million in stocks

Brian T. Moynihan, CEO (Bank of America) = $6.5 million + $6.8 million in stocks

Clarence Otis, Jr., CEO (Darden Rest.) = $7 million + $10 million in stocks

Does this seem fair?
